

Carole Goldberg is Professor of Law at UCLA, where she teaches Civil Procedure, Federal Indian Law, Tribal Legal Systems, and the Tribal Legal Development Clinic, which renders legal services to Indian tribes and Indian judicial systems. She directs the Joint Degree Program in Law and American Indian Studies and is the Faculty Chair of the Law School's Native Nations Law and Policy Center. She has twice served as Acting Director of UCLA's American Indian Studies Center, and has been Associate Dean for UCLA School of Law (1984 to 1989 and 1991 to 1992) and Chair of UCLA's Academic Senate (1993-1994).

Professor Goldberg has written widely on the subject of federal Indian law and tribal law, and is co-editor and co-author of Felix Cohen's Handbook of Federal Indian Law (1982 edition and forthcoming 2005 edition). Her casebook in the field is American Indian Law: Native Nations and the Federal System (4th ed. 2003, with Robert N. Clinton and Rebecca Tsosie), and her current research includes a nationwide, empirical study of law enforcement and criminal justice under Public Law 280 (with Professor Duane Champagne) and a book-length study of the Tule River Indian Tribe of California, entitled "Defying the Odds: One California Tribe's Struggle for Sovereignty in Three Centuries" (with Professor Gelya Frank).

A graduate of Stanford Law School (1971), Professor Goldberg clerked for Judge Robert F. Peckham, U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California. She was Visiting Professor of Law at Harvard Law School in 1977.
