

Frank & Denie Weil

Their early support helped establish the Center for Business & Government

Frank Weil received his AB cum laude and his JD from Harvard. He is currently the Chairman of Abacus Associates. His previous positions include Senior Partner at Ginsburg, Feldman, Weil and Bress; Assistant Secretary and Head of the International Trade Administration at the U.S. Department of Commerce; Chief Financial Officer at Paine, Webber; and General Partner at Loeb, Rhoades and Company. He is current or past trustee or board member for many public and private organizations, including Geico, the Asia Society, the Smithsonian Institution, the Center for National Policy, the Council for Excellence in Government, and the Education Alliance.

Denie (Sandison) Weil received her AB cum laude from Radcliffe. She serves on the Dean's Council at Harvard Divinity School, and is a former Overseer of Harvard University and Trustee of Radcliffe College, among multiple other leadership roles within and beyond Harvard.

Frank and Denie Weil are longstanding bulwarks of Harvard and the Kennedy School. They were instrumental in the founding of the Mossavar-Rahmani Center for Business and Government, which is housed in Weil Hall. Their sponsorship of the Center also includes the founding of the Frank and Denie Weil Program on Collaborative Governance and the creation of the position of the Weil Director of the Mossavar-Rahmani Center for Business & Government.